Course Wrap Up

I just want to briefly run through all of the new and amazing skills you've acquired taking this course. You now know:

- how to set up remote repositories

- how to push changes to a remote repository and get changes from it

- how to fork a repository

- the initial steps to take when you start working on a new feature or change to the project

- how to create a pull request

- and the importance of communicating clearly and frequently with the other stakeholders in the project

- http://up-for-grabs.net/

- http://www.firsttimersonly.com/

- first-timers-only label on GitHub

- try tackling some Git and GitHub challenges with the Git-it app

Wanna see what a developer's very first pull request is? Check out at http://firstpr.me/